

A Cause to Celebrate

It's been one year since Congress and the President granted the FDA oversight of tobacco products, and the effects are already something to celebrate. The FDA has already banned candy-flavored cigarettes. And this week they'll crack down on marketing to kids and ban misleading terms such as "light" and "low tar" — provisions that continue to put America's health above Big Tobacco's profits and will save lives.

