Addressing Opportunities and Challenges in Providing Cancer Screenings to all Texans

The ACS CAN Texas Cancer Policy Forum is a premiere event that brings together leaders from the business, education, medical, government and research communities to advance the work of ACS CAN. The event not only unites those in Texas who are fighting to end cancer, it serves to support ACS CAN and its work.

A recent study by the American Cancer Society finds at least 42% of newly diagnosed cancers in the US – about 750,000 cases in 2021 – are potentially avoidable. The North Texas event will discuss what is being done across Texas to detect cancers early, increase equitable access to screenings and policy solutions to advance cancer prevention.

The panel discussion will include key stakeholders throughout the health community, including leaders in business, academia, public policy, patient advocacy, provider groups, as well as other key stakeholders – exploring the following questions:

- How are evidence-based screening programs improving cancer outcomes in Texas?
- How can we improve patient access to screenings to improve cancer mortality in Texas?
- What policies does ACS CAN advocate for that ensure access to quality cancer screening for all Texans?
